Pontoon election hearing set up One objection on docket

By Scott Cousins
Staff writer

A hearing on objections filed in the April 13 village board races in Pontoon Beach has been set for today, Thursday, in Edwardsville. A Madison County Sheriff's Deputy served notices on candidates and Pontoon Beach Election Board members before Tuesday's Village Board meeting. Trustee Irene Karlechik, chairman of the election board, said the hearing will be at 1 p.m. in Room 327 of the Madison County Courthouse. The election board will deal with only one of two objections filed Friday by Police Chief Michael Crouch. That objection seeks to have mayor candidate Jim Denham thrown off the ballot because of alleged technical errors in his filings. Denham — a former captain and acting chief with the Pontoon Beach Police Department — is one of three candidates for mayor incumbent (T)he hearing will be at 1 p.m. in Room 327 of the Madison County Courthouse.

Glen Wilson and Trustee Randy Presswood are also running. Karlechik said a second objection, seeking to have Village Clerk Mary Rowden removed from the election board, will not be considered. Madison County Clerk Mark Von Nida said earlier this week that the only provision for removing a village or city clerk from an electoral board is if they lose or give up their office or if they are a candidate. Rowden is not seeking re-election this year. In addition to Karlechik and Rowden, Trustee Bob Abel is a member of the board. (See HEARING, Page 5A)

Steel workers go to Washington Import bill reason for trip

By Scott Cousins
Staff writer

Steel workers from across Illinois and Indiana are converging on Washington to lobby for a bill that would combat what they call illegal dumping of foreign steel. About 20 workers from Granite City Steel, American Steel and Laclede Steel boarded a bus at 7 a.m. Tuesday in Granite City for the trip. They were to pick up another dozen or so in Effingham. Three buses from Chicago and one from Indianapolis were also making the journey.

Gary Gaines, an organizer for District 7 of the United Steelworkers of America, said they planned to call on every representative and senator from Illinois and Indiana Wednesday to show their support for a bill introduced by U.S. Rep. Pete Visclosky, D-Indiana, that would limit steel imports. He said several others were flying to Washington to make appointments for them with the legislators. The group was expected to return sometime today — Thursday. "Rep. Visclosky has introduced legislation that will provide some protection against imported steel," Gaines said. "We're going out there to lobby our representatives and senators to support this bill."

The bill would restrict imports of all foreign steel as well as iron ore and coke to the monthly average volume they had during the three years preceding July 1997. The restrictions would take the form of quotas, surcharges or enforceable restraint agreements, and would stay in place for three years.

The bill has been endorsed by more than 100 House members, including (See STEEL, Page 3A)

Hospice program receives new stamp Program cares for terminally ill

By Nicole Vaughn
Staff writer

It's the 20th anniversary of the Hospice of Madison County, and the group has a nationwide campaign to celebrate. The U.S. Postal Service unveiled a new stamp Tuesday nationwide that honors hospices across the country. Madison County's is the oldest of the programs in the Metro-East area and offers programs designed to assist with home care for the terminally ill.

There are about 3,000 such programs in the U.S. served by 25,000 professionals and 100,000 volunteers. Collinsville Postmaster John Serlich did the honors at an unveiling ceremony for Hospice of Madison County representatives and city officials. A similar unveiling was held in Granite City.

The new stamp features a "Hospice Care" logo and a colorful yard scene with a home in the background and a butterfly in the foreground. "I was just amazed by this design," said Nancy Kaprelian, volunteer coordinator for Hospice of Madison County, a division of St. Elizabeth Medical Center in Granite City. "The butterfly symbolizes renewal of life, and it's great the artist captured that."

"Hospice isn't just about dying. It's about living." Collinsville Mayor Vince Kutzera, who attended the ceremony, said he learned that through hospice services provided for his father-in-law. "This was very meaningful to me, having had first-hand experience," Kutzera said. "They do such a great job of caring not only for the patients, but for the survivors, too." Kaprelian said the national Hospice program was honored to have the national recognition of a stamp, especially considering the amount of competition. "There are about 40,000 applications taken for stamps and 30 are selected each year," she said. Serlich said the Postal Service has traditionally used stamps to honor people and places.

"Now we're commemorating programs," Serlich said. He mentioned other health care issues addressed recently on postage stamps like organ and tissue donation and breast cancer awareness.

Man killed following chase

By Mike Heil
Staff writer

Granite City police are still investigating the death of a local man who died in a car crash Tuesday while allegedly attempting to get away from police.

The man, John Davis, 36, of the 3500 block of Village Lane, died after the car he was driving went out of control and struck a tree in the 2700 block of Washington Avenue. He was taken to St. Elizabeth Medical Center, where he was pronounced dead at 4:44 p.m.

According to Granite City police reports, the incident started when a Venice police officer saw Davis' Pontiac Grand Am moving in a reckless manner as it went through a red light, almost striking a car. The suspect's car was heading northbound on Madison Avenue.

The officer, who had visited a fast-food restaurant, activated his lights and sirens and attempted to stop the car.

The car sped away at "high speed," and the officer lost sight of the car as it sped onto Washington Avenue.

Some more thoughts on 'greatest' generation

Some further thoughts on "The Greatest Generation," as promised.

It's not that I don't think we have a few kudos coming, those of us who were born during the '20s, but I question whether it's either wise or possible to arrive at the judgment.

Are we, for example, a greater generation than those of which people like Franklin, Washington, Adams, Thomas Paine, Jefferson, and Madison were a part?

How about the generation of which two of my great-grandfathers were a part, the men (and in their cases, boys) who fought a war that saved our country as a union of states?

For that matter, why not the generation of which our parents were members? Many of them also fought in a major war and came home to marry and start families in what for those years was a booming economy, only to face the crash of '29 and the ensuing Depression, which lasted over a decade.

We grew up in the Great Depression, but they were the ones who reared us. They were the ones who managed to feed us, keep a roof over our heads, educate us. Or at least, most of us.

If we're resilient and tenacious, we have them to thank for it. If there's been heroism and sacrifice from our group, it's because we were taught that it was expected of us. We learned teamwork from them.

Maintenance of the family unit was a given, as were ties with our friends and neighbors. We owe them, our parents and their peers.

I've never been sorry that I grew up in the Depression years. In fact, I'm glad I did. The friends I made then are still my oldest and closest, those who are still above ground. Our youth wasn't a sad one.

It was fun.

Of course, we pretty much had to make our own fun. Should anyone have used the term "instant gratification," we wouldn't have had the foggiest notion what they meant.

When our country entered World War II, most of us were still in college and, for the fellows, it simply meant an interruption, something they'd complete later.

Of the 10 boys in my crowd, only one (because of a physical problem) didn't enlist. All nine of them returned, thankfully, though one had lost a leg in battle and had been confined to a German POW camp.

There were seven males in our generation of my family, two of my cousins being too young to serve. My brother and three of our cousins served in the Air Corps and Navy, while the oldest among us, already a pilot, was loaned by United Airlines to the Navy to train fighter pilots.

All of these, and hundred of thousands more, were simply doing what was expected of them, their duty, as they saw it.

There were nine girls in the old crowd, and six of us were war brides. Several of us bore our first children while our husbands were overseas.

A week-and-a-half before my son was born on the East Coast, my parents in Chicago were notified that my brother's B-29 had been shot down off the Japanese coast and he was missing in action.

Two weeks after I returned from the hospital, I learned he'd been rescued by a Navy sub, one of half the crew to survive. My husband, Ed, based in China, didn't learn he was a father until Mike was nearly two months old.

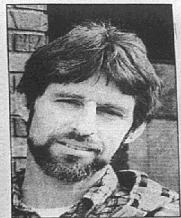

None of us felt sorry for ourselves. It was simply a part of the territory, a game of odds, something we had to accept, along with rationing and using Max Factor on our legs instead of nylons. Our upbringing was what made this possible.

Incidentally, out of that same crowd, all but one of the girls married, but there has never been a divorce among the group. At least, not yet.

Should Tom Brokaw be right (and I honestly don't think he is) that mine is the "greatest" generation, it seems to me that our parents should share in that acclaim.

Santiago beats the odds again

Chicago political survivor deals feds a bitter blow

Rich Miller

If you've ever wondered what a real political wheeler-dealer insider was like, you wouldn't have to look much further than former Rep. Miguel Santiago (D-Chicago).

Santiago just about mastered the Springfield system against a heavily stacked deck. Here was an Hispanic Democrat from the inner city of Chicago who convinced the powerful Illinois State Medical Society, which at the time mostly backed suburban and downstate Republicans, to give him a seat on the Illinois Board of Professional Regulation.

And then he eventually maneuvered himself into a House Democratic leadership slot — even though House Speaker Michael Madigan is totally loyal to the Medical Society's arch-enemy, the Illinois Trial Lawyers Association.

Santiago would gleefully withhold his vote and the votes of his close allies on highly crucial legislation in order to pay pork and other goodies out of the powers that be.

Unlike most legislators, Santiago would never back down until he had gotten what he wanted, and he usually won. He was one tough negotiator.

Santiago also didn't pull any punches on the campaign trail. He ran some of the most brutal campaigns in legislative history, calling one of his opponents a Communist who consorted with terrorists. He earned a reputation for doing whatever it took to get whatever he wanted.

Santiago a ghost job and had agreed to testify against him. State Sen. Bruce Farley (D-Chicago) copped a plea for taking the same sort of ghost job from Rosewell and also agreed to testify at Santiago's trial in exchange for a 27-month jail term.

It looked bad for Santiago and lots of people thought the guy was crazy for refusing to accept a plea bargain.

But that's the Miguel they knew in Springfield: A stubborn, gutsy man who refused to be pushed around by anyone.

The federalists put enormous pressure on Santiago to confess his sins and accept his punishment. But he thumbed his nose at the prosecutors and forced them to present what turned out to be a weak case.

The government didn't have any physical proof that Santiago knew he had a ghost paying job. Rosewell, who gave Santiago the job, was the only one who could truly confirm that Santiago was a ghost pay-roller.

But Rosewell was so deathly ill that he was in no condition to testify.

The ball usually bounced his way when Santiago was in Springfield, and the same thing happened during the trial.

At the last minute, the judge refused to grant the prosecution's request to use Rosewell's guilty plea against Santiago.

The judge said she had second thoughts about accepting Rosewell's plea in the first place, calling it one of the worst mistakes she made, accepting a decision to plead guilty.

Santiago apparently gave a marvelous performance on the witness stand. According to one juror who spoke to the press after the trial, Santiago came off as a former school-teacher unknowing in the ways of a corrupt political system.

Santiago called the trial his "last campaign." And just like all of his legislative races and all of his experiences in the Statehouse, he stood up against big odds and did what it took to win.

Not many Statehouse types were surprised when they heard he had been acquitted on all counts.

Clark gas stations run afoul of new EPA rules

By Becky Garrison
Staff writer

Four St. Clair County Clark stations have been running on fumes since a Dec. 22 Environmental Protection Agency deadline calling for newer, more environmentally sound gas tanks.

Winston Wallace, executive vice president of St. Louis Petroleum and Marketing, the company that purchased 22 Clark stations last year, said the stations should be pumping gas again within the next 14 days.

Stations in St. Clair County include one in Swansea, two in Belleville, and one in O'Fallon. Two of the gas stations owned by Wallace's company are in Madison County.

The stations in Swansea, Belleville and O'Fallon are open as convenience stores only. Wallace said he has one station in Centerville that met compliance and is still pumping gas.

The EPA set the deadline in 1988. Last year, the EPA said that deadline would not be extended because owners have had a decade to make the change.

Stations continuing to operate with old tanks after Dec. 22 faced federal and state fines of $35,000 per day.

Upgrading the tanks cost from $10,000 to $40,000 per tank, and most stations have two or more.

Wallace's company is still working to put his stations in compliance.

"We are placing cathodic protections on the lines and tanks, an option given to us by the State Fire Marshall," Wallace said.

The law states that stations have to pull out old steel tanks and replace them with fiberglass or corrosion-resistant tanks and piping plus spill and leak detectors. Some tanks can be retrofitted with liners.

The law was passed to curb the growing problem of leaking tanks, which already has reached epidemic proportions nationwide.

Wallace said his company did not purchase the Clark Station in Fairview Heights, which has been closed since December.

A Houston developer's proposal to turn the station at 10616 Lincoln Trail into a 2,385-square-foot convenience store, gas station and restaurant was defeated at a recent City Council meeting in Fairview Heights.

Ward 2 Alderman Lydia Cruz said she did not support the proposed development because there is not enough room for it at that location.

"I feel it's a very confined area for a restaurant," she said. "There is not enough room for a turn lane on South Ruby."

Mayor Gail Mitchell said he hopes the developer comes back in with another proposal.

"I think the development would be an improvement on that corner. I think a drive-through restaurant would cause a lot of traffic and may not be the best use," Mitchell said. "I'm sure they will come back in with a different proposal."

SIUE chancellor expected March 11

By Sanford J. Schmidt
Staff writer

Officials at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville said they expect to introduce a new chancellor at a March 11 Board of Trustees meeting.

A search committee's summaries of campus visits of three candidates are scheduled to be in the hands of Southern Illinois University President Ted Sanders today.

Sanders will make the final decision, an SIUE spokesman said, after consulting with the 12-member search committee, headed by Professor Gerald Pogatsnik.

The committee has been working on the selection since the resignation in August 1997 of Nancy Belick. David Warner has served as chancellor since Belick's departure.

About 45 people applied for the post. The committee interviewed eight candidates Dec. 12 and Dec. 13 in St. Louis, spending about two hours with each candidate.

The committee then narrowed the field to three, all of whom visited campus during the past week. They are:

David L. Potter, vice president for executive affairs at George Mason University in Fairfax, Va.

Mary Kathryn Tetreault, interim dean and development associate for the college of education at California State University-Northridge.

Paul L. Gaston, provost and executive vice president of Northern Kentucky University in Highland Heights.

Each spent hours on campus answering questions and submitted lengthy resumes.

Potter graduated cum laude from Amherst College, one of the most prestigious private colleges in America, according to U.S. News and World Report. Potter also holds a master's and a doctorate degree from Syracuse University in Syracuse, N.Y.

Tetreault, a former Chicago public schoolteacher, has a bachelor's degree from Benedictine College in Atchison, Kan. She earned a master's degree from the University of Chicago and a doctorate from Boston University. Gaston, formerly an SIUE professor and administrator, has a bachelor's degree from Southern Louisiana University and a master's and doctorate from the University of Virginia in Charlottesville, Va. All three have attended the Institute for Educational Management at Harvard University in Cambridge, Mass.

The objection to be considered seeks to have Denham removed from the ballot because of two technical violations and accused Rowden of taking election documents home in violation of village ordinances.

ordinances.

Crouch also said Denham's statement of candidacy represents him as an "independent" candidate, but in other documents, he refers to the New Beginnings Party.

The second objection sought to have Rowden removed from the board because of a "conflict of interests."

Crouch's objection said Denham's nominating petitions were not consecutively numbered as required by state law. He also said that Rowden took the documents home — a violation of village ordinance.

Granite City police said the car continued on Washington. At the 2700 block of Washington Avenue, the suspect's car struck another vehicle. The driver of that vehicle pulled off the side of the road as the suspect's car slammed into a nearby tree.

Emergency workers pulled Davis from the vehicle and rushed him to the hospital, where he was pronounced dead.

Kimmel nominations sought

"Southern Illinois University-Edwardsville officials are urging people to nominate outstanding volunteers for the annual Carol Kimmel Community Service awards.

The deadline for nominations is Feb. 26, and those who wish to make nominations will find applications at the Kimmel Leadership Center on the first floor of the Morris University Center at SIUE.

The awards were established to recognize outstanding community leaders for dedication and contributions to community volunteer service.

Godfrey residents Linda Nevin and Dr. Sadiq Mohyuddin were winners in 1998.

Nevin was cited in the environmental/civic betterment category. Mohyuddin won under the special populations category.

Nevin was honored for volunteer service with such groups as the YWCA, the Alton Community Service League, Alton Little Theater and the Junior League of Greater Alton.

Mohyuddin was honored for bringing Afghan refugees to Godfrey for free medical treatment and for raising funds to provide food for the people of Bosnia-Herzegovina.

The awards are named after Carol Kimmel, a former member of the SIUE Board of Trustees who continues to give freely of her time to volunteerism, a university official said.

"She was an outstanding volunteer," said Kimmel Director Steve Sperotto.

Goff ordered held pending state trial

By Dennis Grubaugh
Staff writer

Ronald A. Goff will remain in custody pending a trial on a state petition to declare him a sexually violent person.

Associate Judge James Hackett on Monday found probable cause to hold Goff over for a hearing that must be held within 45 days. In the interim, he will be shuttled as needed between the Madison County Jail and the Sheridan Correctional Center, where the state Department of Human Services' mental health unit will evaluate him.

The Illinois Attorney General's Office is seeking to commit Goff, 59, under the state's Sexually Violent Persons Commitment Act.

Goff served 27 months of a five-year sentence for criminal sexual abuse of two boys, 11 and 13, in Madison and Washington counties. He was scheduled to be released last month before the state filed its petition and prompted a judge to continue the incarceration. The state says Goff is still a threat.

Goff was paroled in January 1998, but taken back into custody last month after claims that he had violated conditions of his parole through his presence around children.

One woman filed a report with Edwardsville police after allegedly seeing Goff drive slowly past an elementary school while children were leaving on March 11, 1998. The same woman told of seeing Goff's truck in the parking lot of a local church on March 15.

The state maintains that Goff was in the education wing of the church where children are present — at least four times, but Goff has said he was always there when other adults were present.

Goff's court-appointed attorney, Rand Hale of East Alton, told reporters that he has had so little time to review Goff's file that he cannot yet rebut any of the allegations.

A psychologist and a sex therapist for the Department of Corrections and an Illinois State Police trooper testified at the hearing Monday.

Sgt. Jennifer Maness testified that she had conducted the criminal investigation of Goff in 1995. She said one of the boys was allegedly assaulted by Goff from the time the boy was 11 in 1978 until he was 18.

The second boy was a sixth-grader when Goff became his Boy Scout troop master in 1989. Goff allegedly had sexual encounters with him at Camp Dubois, a church camp in Washington County, and at Goff's former home in Edwardsville.

"He (Ronald Goff) is attracted to fairly slim, athletic-looking young men — the kind he would like to be if he were that age."

Dr. Marc Levinson
Corrections psychologist

When state police approached the second boy about the investigation in 1995, he agreed to call Goff's home while an officer listened in on the call.

During the call, Goff denied molesting anyone, but acknowledged that he had showered with the youth and had lunched him in a camper outside his home, Maness said.

Goff allegedly told the boy during the call that it also was not uncommon for one man to kiss another, Maness said.

Maness testified that she also interviewed a third youth who disclosed molestation by Goff. He, too, allegedly met Goff at the church camp. The boy said that Goff invited him to several places where molestation allegedly occurred between 1990 and 1993, including a school trip to Washington, where Goff was a chaplain.

At the time, Goff was principal of Edwardsville Junior High School, but the student was not a student at the school, Maness testified.

Dr. Marc Levinson, a corrections psychologist, testified that he interviewed Goff on Jan. 13, at which time Goff admitted abusing 12 boys since age 17. He said Goff suffers from pedophilia, a mental disorder that makes it likely he will engage in further acts of sexual violence.

"He is attracted to fairly slim, athletic-looking young men — the kind he would like to be if he were that age," Levinson said.

Levinson said men who like males have a harder time with "impulse control" and are more likely to commit sexual violence than men who like females.

Assistant Attorney General Kirk D. Schoenbein has asked for a jury trial of Goff.

THE LAW AND YOU

By RICK REED Attorney At Law

During the pendency of a lawsuit, the attorney for the defendant may wish to take the plaintiff's deposition. In a deposition, the party being deposed answers questions under oath before a court reporter. Frequently clients inquire about the importance of the answers given in the deposition. Attorneys take depositions for several reasons. In the first place, the attorney is able to gather information about the case from the answers to questions. In addition, the testimony given in a deposition can be used for impeachment purposes. This means that at trial the attorney can use the testimony in the deposition to show any contradictions between trial testimony and the sworn statement given in the deposition.

Finally, several Illinois cases stand for the proposition that assertions made in a deposition constitute binding judicial admissions. This means that the testimony in a deposition can be used as a basis for a motion for summary judgment. If a court grants a summary judgment, the judge decides that there is no genuine issue of material fact and that a trial is unnecessary.

In one recent case, a man was employed by the U.S. Postal Service for 12 years when he fell from a loading dock. He eventually filed suit against the architect of the loading dock.

The postal worker claimed in his deposition that he fell over rubber bumper strips which were used to prevent hand trucks from rolling off the loading dock. He apparently meant to say that he tripped over metal plates which were lowered electrically into trucks to aid loading. The company he sued manufactured the metal plates rather than the rubber bumper strips.

The attorney for the defendant filed a motion for summary judgment, asserting that his client neither designed the rubber bumper strips nor supervised their construction. The attorney for the plaintiff responded to this motion by submitting an affidavit indicating that his client had returned to the accident site and he now realized that he had tripped over metal plates rather than rubber bumpers. The Court granted the motion for summary judgment, noting that the plaintiff had stated clearly in his deposition that he tripped over rubber bumper strips. In this case, the plaintiff failed to recover money for his injuries due to his confusion in the deposition.

Use extra traffic caution at Dial plant, IDOT says

By Darryl Howlett
Staff writer

Motorists traveling along Illinois Route 111 by the Dial Corp. distribution plant in Pontoon Beach should use extra caution, said officials at the Illinois Department of Transportation.

Several minor accidents have taken place along the stretch of roadway in the past several weeks.

IDOT is currently turning the two-lane road into four lanes to allow traffic going into the Dial distribution center to do so without slowing down passing traffic.

"Our operations unit tracks the history of accidents," said Jim Easterly, district engineer with IDOT. "We have put up additional signage to slow down motorists. There's also been a concern about the number of trucks using the entrance."

Cindy Travis Mueller, a supervising field engineer in construction with IDOT, said the change in speed limits was necessary to stop accidents waiting to happen.

"We have reduced the speed limits in the area to 45 mph," she said. "When we did that, we placed (electronic) message boards for motorists traveling southbound. We also have reflective barricades to prevent motorists from running into the construction area at night."

Nancy Stern, vice president of corporate affairs for the Dial Corp., said the construction and traffic is not an ongoing concern for the company.

"We have an ongoing safety program," Stern said. "It's an effort for both our employees and the truck drivers coming into the plant. We feel that this is a non-story for Dial. The police officials usually handle any traffic problems."

Construction should be finished by July 4.

Heavy rains cause minor flooding, close racetrack

By Val McDowell
Staff writer

This past weekend's rainstorms caused some flooding around the area.

Fairmount Park race track officials were forced to cancel races Sunday, but it was back to business as usual Monday morning.

Bobby Pace, director of racing at Fairmount Park, said the situation wasn't catastrophic but called for quick decision making.

"We wound up canceling races on Sunday, mainly because five of the (park's 14) barns for the horses were under about a foot of water," he said.

Pace said the horses were moved to stalls on higher ground until the water receded.

The decision to cancel the races, which begin at 1 p.m., was made at about 9 a.m. Sunday. The problem was that too much rain fell in too short of time, Pace said.

"I'm pretty sure we had up to three and a half inches of rain between 3 and 5 a.m. Sunday morning," he said.

However, racing buffs were

"The ground stands were not affected at all, so what we did was let people come in and participate in the simulcast wagering," Pace said.

Simulcast wagering involves broadcasting national races. There was no charge for the event.

"It's been about two years or so since we had to call off the races because of flooding," Pace said.

Ron Streiler, chapter manager of the Tri-City Red Cross, said it had limited involvement in flood relief but was not overwhelmed.

"Basically, what we've done is put about five families into hotels because there had been some flooding in their houses," he said.

He said the area most affected was Collinsville Road near

"Sewers had backed up, there was water in some of the houses and these people needed a place to stay for a few days," he said.

Some residents were still relocated as late as Monday.

"We gave out some cleanup kits, but the families are pretty much responsible for cleaning the houses up themselves," Streiler said.

Streiler said this area had been flooded a couple years ago, and most of the families did not have flood insurance.

Dick Lickfield, principal of nearby Kreitner Elementary, said the school was not affected but he worried about residents.

Bob Emig

Shannon steps into good spot at CBC High

Another legend has passed through the ranks in Metro East high school sports, joining such legends as Collinsville basketball coach Vergil Fletcher and Granite City wrestling coach William "Red" Schmitt.

This legendary coach hasn't retired. He merely hopped across the river, looking to add to his legendary status in Missouri.

At 54 years of age, former East St. Louis and Alton football coach Bob Shannon was hired last week as the new football coach at CBC High School in Richmond Heights, Mo.

"I've tasted the sweet (East St. Louis) and the bitter (Alton), and I'm hoping to taste the sweet again," Shannon said.

Shannon walks into a situation at CBC considerably different from what he was used to at East St. Louis and Alton. He'll certainly have more resources to work with in terms of not only facilities but also in the number of players in the program. CBC, an all-boys private school, regularly has more than 100 players out for football. The numbers at East St. Louis and Alton were, at best, half that.

"I haven't been able to have a full scrimmage in maybe 12 or 13 years, including at East Side," Shannon said.

Shannon should be rejuvenated at CBC. There's a good chance he'll have the opportunity to be successful like he was at East St. Louis, where his teams won six state championships in 19 seasons and had a 193 wins and a winning percentage of .854.

"I'm going to a school that has a good football tradition," said Shannon, who replaced Bryan Hagerty, who had a 154-96 record and 22 winning campaigns in 25 seasons with the Cadets. "The kids come from good families. They have good athletes and also are strong in academics."

It will be interesting to see if Shannon can make the same static power like he made East St. Louis a regular challenger for a state championship in Illinois. Besides the six IHSA state championships, Shannon's East St. Louis teams also placed second in the state twice, was a semi-finalist twice and was once ranked No. 1 in the USA Today final prep poll.

Shannon's three-year stay at Alton produced only one victory against 19 losses. Last season, the Redbirds went only 1-8.

"I think my reputation as a taskmaster at Alton didn't help me," said Shannon, who drove many potential blockers away from the program. "There weren't enough players willing to pay the price for success. But the cupboard won't be bare. There are 39 starters coming back, and I have a lot of confidence in their track coach. I believe football and track go hand in hand."

"I believe I've left the Alton program in better shape than when I started. I really didn't have enough time to achieve success there. It's going to take 10 years. At this stage in my life, I'm not the guy. You need a younger man in there, someone from within the community who is willing to make the commitment to be there a long time."

Shannon's commitment to CBC is for at least five years. In four years, the school will move into a new site in Town & County, Mo., near the intersection of Interstate 270 and Hwy. 40.

"Besides coaching, Shannon is not sure what his other duties at the school will be."

"I'll be teaching some health classes," he said. "I could be involved in counseling and also in athletic administration."

Shannon's football leadership in southwestern Illinois will be missed. He made the area proud as he regularly knocked off the best of the Chicago area had to offer.

"We had some great times and some great teams," Shannon said. "I was fortunate to work with a lot of dedicated players and coaches, including the coaches at the junior high level. We had a tremendous run."

Shannon has said that he might head south someday to coach, either in Louisiana, Mississippi or Alabama.

"I guess I'll have to put that on the backburner for at least five or six years now," he said.

Warriors celebrate senior night

Granite City senior Jan Shanafelt scored 12 points, dished out eight assists and grabbed five rebounds Monday night during the team's senior night game against Alton.

GIRLS BASKETBALL

The seniors on the Granite City girls basketball team have experienced quite a turnaround this season. The Warriors, who struggled to a 3-20 mark in 1997-98, have bounced back to a relatively prosperous 13-12 mark against a tough schedule.

On Monday night, the Granite City seniors celebrated their night with a 67-50 Southwestern Conference victory against Alton.

Before the game, the senior girls greeted their parents and fans for the final regularly scheduled regular-season home game. Seniors Jan Shanafelt, Liz Dittman, Janelle Hanks and Debra Aaron went out on top, but it wasn't without a struggle.

Aaron, who will attend Lewis & Clark College and play both soccer and basketball, had to fight through an awful case of the flu — and early foul trouble — to get through Monday's game.

"I got sick Friday after the game and I was running pretty high fevers," Aaron said. "This morning, I was getting sick, but I took some vitamins and I managed to get through the game all right."

Hanks twisted her ankle in the first half and had to leave the game. She missed Tuesday's loss to East St. Louis.

For Dittman, the senior night performance was something special.

She reinjured her surgically-repaired knee before the season and had been relegated to the sidelines. But she recently gained clearance to play and scored in the fourth quarter of Monday's game.

"I was really excited," Dittman said. "I was really nervous at the beginning, but once I got in I was a lot better. Jan kind of had me pumped up, but I think it kind of made it harder to score with all of the pressure. But I had a lot of fun. That's all that matters."

"It was really nice," Shanafelt said. "Liz and I are the only two who have been playing all four years, so we go all the way back to our freshman year and it was really neat to have that experience with her tonight, watching her score that basket."

Shanafelt had a great night with 12 points, eight assists and five rebounds.

"It was really nice to have that huge crowd tonight," Shanafelt said. "For us, that was big and we really needed it. It helped a lot."

Monday also represented a passing of the torch.

With a 21-point lead after three quarters, Granite City coach John Moad put in his younger players. The seniors witnessed the future of the program and concurred the program is in good hands.

"They'll all step up really well," Aaron said. "I think that next year, they are going to improve the record even more. I think that the 3-20 record is all behind us now completely and every year we are going to keep improving."

To be replaced by Katie (Ronk) and Erika (Todd), and to still have Jess (Wallace) and Della (Moore) and Tabby (Duff) out there, they should be fine," Shanafelt said. "They've been getting a lot of playing time anyway."

Warriors use team effort to beat flu, Alton

By Rick Broome

Monday was senior night at Granite City High School.

But this is also cold and flu season, making Monday's game as much a struggle between health and illness as Granite City and Alton.

Warriors pride won out as the seniors led Granite City to a 67-50 Southwestern Conference victory against Alton.

"We match up with this team well," Granite City coach John Moad said. "They are real aggressive and we've got some girls that like to take the ball to the basket. We shot a lot of free throws and we didn't make a lot of them early. The game should have been over in the first half, if we would have made our free throws."

Granite City also had to overcome

"I wouldn't want to have to play us in the regional. I think that we are dangerous because we are still a little inconsistent and you don't want to catch us on a good night.... Hopefully we'll be ready to play and extend our season a little bit."

John Moad
Granite City coach

illnesses and injuries as a few players — including leading scorer Debra Aaron — battled the flu and one, Janelle Hanks, was lost to a sprained ankle in the first half.

Thus, the Warriors were in a 10-10 deadlock with the Redbirds after one quarter.

But junior Erika Todd stole the game for the Warriors with her defensive effort. She finished with 9 points, seven rebounds, seven steals and six assists.

Aaron and fellow Warriors senior Jan Shanafelt led Granite City in scoring.

Aaron had to sit much of the first half after committing three early fouls, finished with 13 points and 12 rebounds. Shanafelt added 12 points, eight assists and five rebounds and contributed to the swarming press.

"I thought the seniors did a good job," Moad said. "Debra was in foul trouble, so she didn't have one of her big games, but we did it without her and she has carried us for a long time. She had a decent game when she was in there, but her minutes were really cut down because of fouls."

Jan played well. Liz Dittman came in and did a nice job. Janelle hurt her ankle and that's a bad break for her on senior night, but she has given us some good minutes. This group of seniors deserved this. It was a good night for them."

The Warriors sent in the reserves in the second half and didn't let the Redbirds back in the game. Tabby Duff had 6 points filling in for Aaron. Katie Ronk, Ashley Bogovich and Christina Withers kept the Redbirds back on their heels. Freshman Erin Tyler made some good minutes. This group of seniors deserved this. It was a good night for them."

"I thought people coming off the bench were ready to play as soon as they stepped on the court," Moad said.

Granite City's Chris Tindall, left, has demonstrated jumping ability and shooting range this season.

Tindall leads by example with attitude, athleticism

BOYS BASKETBALL

During Saturday night's loss to East St. Louis, Granite City center Chris Tindall took an alley-oop pass from Matt Pistorius and dunked over the top of Flyers junior standout center Darius Miles.

The move showed the athleticism and no-fear attitude which are the hallmarks of Tindall's game.

"He is a very, very athletic young man," Granite City coach John VanBuskirk said. "He jumps extremely well. He probably, for a big man, has as good an out-court shot as anybody in the area from 15-16 feet out. I'm sure that creates problems for other teams."

"If you watched him at Alton, how many rebounds did he get above the rim? He's very capable of doing that."

Tindall, in fact, sees rebounding as his primary role for the Warriors.

"My role is basically to be a rebounder," Tindall said. "I'm not there to shoot. I'm wide open unless I think I can make it. I'm more of a passer. Zack (May) is real good from the 3-point line. Matt is real good down low and averages the most points, so we have to get those two balls."

"I'm averaging about 11 points per game and that's good, but not real good. You have to keep getting the top scorers the ball because they are making it. Basically I think myself, Mike Simpson and Kevin Elliott are role players. We're there to play strong defense, and help the team win."

Tindall earns notice from the other players for the way he handles his role.

"He plays hard and gets a lot of rebounds for us," Simpson said. "Whenever he gets the ball, he can score and help the team out that way. Being one of the only seniors, any time that he brings the ball everybody else up because people look up to him. He's an unselfish player. On defense, he and I have to take care of all the big people, so he's a major factor on defense."

But Tindall, a 6-foot-6 senior, doesn't have any trouble shooting as when he's called upon. His range opens up the inside for quick dump-ins to Simpson or Pistorius, or even a drive of his own.

"I try to shoot from like a foot or two inside the 3-point line," Tindall said. "If I'm open I'm going to shoot. If they are going to give it to me, why not take it?"

"Truthfully, he is not a center, he is a forward," VanBuskirk said. "As quick as he is, you see that he has one favorite move where he gives a shot-look and likes to dribble with his left hand and go to his left either for a jump shot or to take it all the way in. That's his favorite move, and that has to impress the college coaches. He's able to put it on the floor and take it to the basket, he just doesn't have to rely on one move." Tindall credits his unselfish attitude to Dustin Brewer, who graduated from Granite City last year and is now playing minor-league baseball in the Baltimore Orioles organization. Tindall started last year as a junior and paid attention to what his elders were trying to teach him.

"I think Dustin was a great player," Tindall said. "He was strong, he always kept our heads up, he was always hustling. I passed to him a lot and he passed to me and he wasn't a selfish player on the team, then the team is going to lose. Everybody has to work together and play together."

Tindall has improved his game in other areas as well. "His shooting is much-improved this year," VanBuskirk said. "His knowledge of the game is much-improved. They concentrated a lot on Dustin last year and Chris benefitted a little from that. His attitude is a lot better this year. He's trying real hard to be a leader as a senior, he's trying to be a leader of this team and he didn't have to be last year. All those things he's shown great improvement in. We're happy with what he has done." "Even if things go bad, I try to keep everybody positive," Tindall said. "Of course, for 32 minutes everything just isn't going to go our way. Win or lose, you have to stay focused and keep your head in it."

"He works hard and he very, very much wants to win. It's important to him."

The Warriors have tried to keep their heads and learn the lessons of last year, when they ended the season with a 10-game losing streak and an 11-17 mark.

"Last year we learned that people can beat us," Tindall said. "If we aren't willing to play hard, then we are going to get beat. We have to play 100 percent, maybe 110 percent, to win." The Warriors have found themselves in a tailspin again as this season winds down. "We have the toughest conference, I think, in the state," Tindall said. "It's kind of hard when our first games are easy and the end of the season is hard, so we have to pick it up. We lost six straight games and we need to turn it around and climb the hill. Our shooting percentage against Collinsville (a 53-28 loss) was 33 percent. You can't win a game shooting 33 percent. We do a lot of shooting drills in practice, work a lot on offense, shooting around picks. The junior varsity team does a real good job of helping us out, they play hard and foul us a lot because you know you are going to get fouled a lot in the games."

One the season is over, Tindall will turn his attention to picking a college. "Because of his athletic ability, he has college people interested in him to play college basketball," VanBuskirk said. "I hope that's what he wants to do because I think he would have a chance to play at that next level. He probably has to play out of position here a little. On the press he has to be out farther in front and he's probably playing out of position there, but he does it to the best of his ability. He's really quick for a big man and that's probably why the college coaches like him so much. He jumps so fast and he anticipates well. He's not going to have to play center in college.

"He works hard and he very, very much wants to win. It's important to him. He is a very important part to our team. We wouldn't be where we are now without him. He is a big part of what we are trying to do. He's very valuable. We probably won't even realize how valuable he is until we lose him next year."

"There are a couple of coaches I like, but I haven't really decided," Tindall said. "I'll go wherever I can get a scholarship or get to play, as long as I can move on to the next level. I'm going to get a better education also. I want to go into architecture, construction-wise. My dad owns a construction company, so I'd like to get into that field."

Dustin Wesley has helped the Illinois Warriors rattle off a win streak late in the MVCHA regular season.

Wesley helps Warriors put together big finish

By Rick Broome
Staff writer

CLUB ICE HOCKEY

The Illinois Warriors are ending the Mississippi Valley Club Hockey Association season on a tear, going unbeaten in their last eight games to sit atop the Northern Division at 12-3.

Leading the way is speedy junior forward Dustin Wesley. "He's the fastest guy on the team," Warriors captain Bobby Meszaros said. "A lot of times in games when they put two guys on me, Dustin will be open and he's capitalizing. It's hurting the other team because they can't cover both of us at the same time."

"I just try to go out there and skate as hard as I can and do my job every shift," Wesley said. "I can only do what I can."

Before the winning streak, Wesley had four goals, 11 assists and a plus-minus rating of plus-11, which speaks volumes about his willingness to come back and help out in the defensive end.

"I try to get back as much as possible because sometimes if a guy gets caught behind the net and they are rushing down, you have to get back as fast as you can and try to catch up to a guy and tie him up," Wesley said. "You just make sure that if they pass the puck to him he isn't going to be able to get a shot off. Just because you are a forward doesn't mean that you don't have to play defense, too."

"Against Althoff (a 5-4 win) we had a three-on-one coming back against us and Dustin was back by their net and he just put his head down and he tied up his men," Warriors coach Paul Sollberger said. "It ended up where they tried to force the puck to him and Dustin had him covered. It was excellent."

"Dustin is a workhorse. He gets out there and he kills penalties for us, he does a real good job. He's tenacious and the offense is starting to kick on for him right now. They are keying on Bobby, and Dustin is starting to score and that's important. You start to get some balance on a line. Dustin is extremely fast, he takes the defenseman wide and it opens up the center of the ice for Bobby. Dustin ought to be right up there leading the league in assists. He takes the puck down low, which opens the ice up for Bobby and he gets Bobby the puck. Now that a lot of teams are shadowing Bobby, Bobby is taking it wide and getting the puck to Dustin. It creates real balance for the line."

Wesley has made real strides to improve his game from the level he was at as a sophomore last year.

"I think his stickhandling has really picked up," Sollberger said. "I think he has gotten stronger along the boards. He has gotten the confidence that he can get wide and go into the boards, absorb the hit, and skate through it. I'd say the one thing is that he just keeps his legs moving all throughout the game and he's a ball of fire. He's key to our offense and defense. He's probably the most defensive-minded player we've got on that line so he comes back and does a good job backchecking."

Sollberger made Wesley an assistant captain this year, and Wesley responded, leading with his intense work rate and calm demeanor.

"Dustin more or less leads by example," Sollberger said. "He's not a big rah-rah guy, but he leads with his work ethic. I think that's essential."

"I just always try to be a leader in practice and in the games, and not do anything stupid," Wesley said. "I just try to do what I think is right, what a person should do, and lead the team by example."

Wesley played hockey at a young age but had to give up the sport for a while for health considerations.

"I started playing again in fifth grade and I've been playing ever since for the Steelers," Wesley said.

He now hopes to help the Warriors to their second straight MVCHA title.

"I think this year we have to try a lot harder than we did last year," Wesley said. "This year is a bigger challenge and we're all having to play a lot harder and skate a lot harder. Not that last year was easy or anything, but this year is a lot tougher and we're having to work a lot harder to achieve what we are trying to do, repeat and get another championship. It's just a lot more work basically. People are gunning for us because since we are the champions everyone is gearing up to play us that's their game for the season."

"If we just keep skating and trying hard and giving a lot of effort I think we'll be all right. We need to peak as we keep going through the playoffs."

Kahoks earn 18th win

Win at Centralia puts team in position to break mark

By Brian Bretsch
Staff writer

With the IHSA Class AA girls postseason tournament looming next week, Collinsville's non-conference game Tuesday night with Centralia had all the makings of a playoff contest.

The Kahoks won 55-42 to post their 18th win of the season — tying the school record for most wins in a single campaign.

"This is the kind of atmosphere — if you are going to go anywhere into the state playoffs — you have to win," Collinsville coach Steve McFall said. "There was nobody on (the Kahoks') side. I am pleased with the win."

"It was the final road games of a season that seemed liked a long road trip. We got some huge wins."

Eighteen of them against just seven losses. The Kahoks swept Belleville East and Belleville West and split with Edwardsville in Southwestern Conference action to tie the Tigers for second place behind East St. Louis. The Kahoks, seeded fourth in the sectional tournament, will open postseason play with another SWC foe, Alton. That is a home game set for 7:30 p.m. at Vergil Fletcher Gymnasium.

Interestingly, the Kahoks will meet Alton in a conference game this Friday at 8 p.m. That game also will be played in Collinsville.

On Tuesday, Collinsville spoiled Centralia's home game and senior night festivities. Collinsville played solid defense on the Orphan Annie's top two scorers — Stephanie DePew and Jennifer Brink. They combined for just nine points.

GIRLS BASKETBALL

"Stacy Deluca held their best player to just six points and Brink worked hard to get those points," McFall said. "Deluca didn't score a point. She had 12 assists. I don't know if she wasn't the best player out there. She was just unbelievable, unbelievable."

"(Amanda) Kirksey and (Angie) Parker stopped DePew. They only gave her one good look all night and she made it."

"We silenced their two best players and their other players couldn't get it done."

Autumn Dow led the Kahoks with 22 points. Dow has scored 578 points on the season and is just 39 points short of breaking the single-season mark (516).

"Autumn was Autumn," McFall said. Dow, who had just one foul in the first half, was hit with two fouls in the first three minutes of the third quarter and went to the bench.

Katie Vieluf replaced Dow and teamed with Amy Loftus to keep the Orphan Annie's at bay.

"Katie Vieluf did a really good job for us when Autumn was out," McFall said. "Loftus really stepped it up. Rachel (Stabenfeldt) hit two or three big 3's. Kirksey got to big steals and easy lay ups. We pushed the lead up without Dow. Getting out of there with a win felt good."

said. "It didn't take them a couple of trips down the floor to get in the flow, they were ready from the start. That's a plus. You have to be ready when you are sitting on the bench, you have to be ready when I put you in there to do something positive for us. They did a good job of that."

"Erika Todd gave us a real spark again. Tabby hit some shots from the free-throw line when Debra went out and that helped us. We had some people really step up and hit some big baskets for us."

Starting forwards Jess Wallace and Della Moore combined for 19 points and eight rebounds for the Warriors, who improved to 13-12 overall and 4-7 in the Southwestern Conference.

Granite City next plays in Jerseyville on Monday night in the first round of the IHSA Class AA regional.

"I would like to go to Jerseyville and be in the game, I really would," Moad said. "I think if we are in the game, these girls have shown that they are capable of pulling it out in the end. I wouldn't want to have to play us in the regional. I think that we are dangerous because we are still a little inconsistent and you don't want to catch us on a good night. We've proven that we can knock some good teams off. Jerseyville plays exactly the same kind of game that we play, the exact same press, so we match up decently with them. We are both going to be trying to do the same thing, so whoever can do it best will win. Hopefully we'll be ready to play and extend our season a little bit."

day night.

They will play at Jerseyville in the first round of the regional tournament.

But for this senior class, the Monday night was a game they will remember for quite a while.

"I felt like I wanted to cry when I gave my mom the flowers and I realized that this is one of the last nights I'll play in the gym," Aaron said.

"I mean, I'll play in college, but I've played with the same group of girls for the last three years now and it's going to be really sad to be over."

Train show to benefit high school

Ninth annual show is Saturday in Dupo

By Joe Leicht
Staff writer

When Dirk Reynolds of Columbia got his first model train set as a fickle 9-year-old, it didn't exactly rivet his attention.

Now as an adult, model railroading is something he can't get enough of.

"It started with that first Lionel train set," he said. "I played with it a little until I was 10, then picked back up on it when I was about 14, but cars came along about that time and that was pretty much the end of that."

Then, about nine years ago, Reynolds attended a model train show at Lutheran South High School in St. Louis. He has been scratching the model railroad itch ever since.

He is the organizer of the annual Dupo Train Show at Dupo High School; its ninth run is from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday.

"I wanted to do something for Dupo High School and my friend who ran the show (at Lutheran South) said he usually raises $1,000 to $2,000 for the school with their show," Reynolds said.

He arranged with his father, William Reynolds, who was then Dupo High School principal, to have a train show at the school with the school athletic department receiving all of the gate receipts.

The show has grown in popularity and this year's event should be the biggest yet, Reynolds said.

"I've got 70 tables reserved and 29 vendors," he said. "The American Flyer Club will have a big model layout (as the feature display)."

This year, the show will be combined with a blood drive to benefit the American Red Cross.

"It ought to help get a large supply of blood," Reynolds said.

Reynolds custom builds model railways and is a founder of the Columbia Model Railroaders.

He owns Reynolds Railways, a company he said "started out small" but "has grown into a fairly large business. Actually, now it's more of an obsession."

Reynolds takes his train show on the road more than 100 times per year — to cities as far away as Detroit.

Historic Miner's Theatre comes alive

Recreation district sponsors monthly movies

By Alene Hill
Correspondent

Until recently, an entire generation of local patrons would have missed the chance to catch a movie in Collinsville's historic Miner's Theatre.

But thanks to the Collinsville Area Recreation District and the Miner's Institute Foundation, movies are scheduled once again in the ornate theater built in 1918 by local miners.

"We knew Miner's was interested in opening the theater for activities and they had a screen they weren't using at that point," said Brian Witty, CARD superintendent of recreation. "So we decided to work together to start showing movies again."

This is the second season for the "Second Saturday Movie Series," which features monthly screenings on the second Saturday from October through March.

Movies begin at 2 p.m. Popcorn and soda are sold during the film.

This season's series has included old favorites "Beetlejuice," "Willy Wonka and the Chocolate Factory," "Gremlins" and "Charlotte's Web."

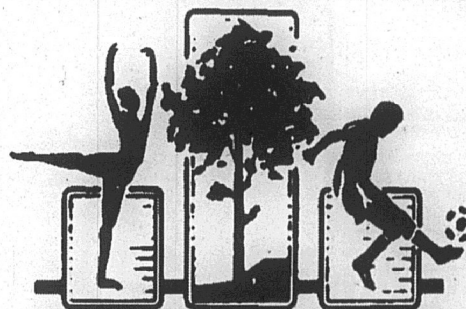

This month's feature, to be presented Saturday, is the Disney classic "Mary Poppins." The series ends March 13 with "The Big Green."

"What we are selecting are movies with big screen appeal that are family oriented," Witty said.

"And it's a bargain at $1 for admission."

Witty said the only problem in selecting films has been the availability of the film type required for the theater's projection equipment.

"There are some movies I would love to schedule," he said. "But we do run into some problems getting them in the 35 mm format."

Parents have the option of dropping their children off at the theater for the film or staying to enjoy the feature with them.

"Once we start the film, we don't let the kids leave the building," Witty said.

Since the theater was constructed it has been a part of community activities.

It was built with the help of a loan from the United Mine Workers of America and a pledge from area miners to donate one percent from their wages. The building includes large spacious meeting rooms and a banquet hall on the upper floors.

Vaudeville acts accompanied by St. Louis Symphony musicians marked the theater's debut in December, 1918. The theater featured some of the first motion pictures and even held Collinsville Township High School graduations through the mid-1930s. It was added to the National Register of Historic Places in 1985.

Three years later, it was purchased by a group of Collinsville citizens who formed the not-for-profit Miner's Institute Foundation.

Courthouse painting opens a mystery

Restoration of historic artwork is dependent on finding its owner

By Dennis Grubaugh
Staff writer

The painstaking process of restoring a historic painting at the Madison County Courthouse faces a fact-finding challenge before the work can begin.

"The first question is finding out who owns it," Edwardsville lawyer Larry Taliana said.

"We can't go playing around with this until we know that." The answer may well be that the community owns it. A man who saw the painting being done in 1922 says that the artist died with no heirs.

"That was Charlie Benedict," recalled Robert Emery, 92, of Edwardsville. "He lived next door to us at 507 West High. He did it on a window shade instead of a canvas."

"I used to go over there as a kid of 14 and watch him paint in his front room."

He said he watched the artist painting the piece while it was framed and propped on an easel. The window shade material was just like a canvas, he said.

Benedict worked from notes instead of a photograph. "He had a photographic eye," Emery said. "He went around the town and made notes."

"I tell you, he was a talented person."

The artwork depicts an aerial view of Edwardsville in 1922 but is warped, peeling and fading.

Taliana is chairman of the art committee of the Madison County Bar Association, which has been asked to help restore the painting.

The Madison County Board's Building Committee recently asked the Bar Association to

"He had a photographic eye. He went around the town and made notes. I tell you, he was a talented person."

Robert Emery
On Charlie Benedict

get involved, at the urging of Glen Carbon resident Lee Presser, who has long been an advocate of restoring the painting. The art hangs in the second-floor courtroom of Chief Criminal Judge Edward C. Ferguson, who retrieved it from the courthouse basement.

The painting hung many years in the hallway outside the Madison County Clerk's Office and was moved to the basement when the courthouse was refurbished a few years ago.

Taliana said the key to restoration is the ownership question. In the bottom right corner of the picture is a copyright mark with the phrase "C.A.R. Benedict, all rights reserved."

Taliana said his fear in going ahead with the project is that someone may claim ownership rights later.

However, Emery said he doesn't think the ownership is an issue.

Benedict lived alone with his sister. Both were unmarried and without heirs, Emery said. Benedict died in the mid-1940s, by which time the painting was at the courthouse.

A freelance artist with no other occupation, Benedict's only revenue when he did the painting came from businessmen who paid a fee to get their business' name drawn onto the art, Emery said.

Once the ownership question is resolved, Taliana said the bar association will begin considering ways to restore the work or at least preserve it.

BAC plans jazz event Feb. 25

The Belleville Area College Foundation will host its annual "Jazz Up" event from 7 to 9:30 p.m. on Feb. 25 with familiar favorites and new attractions.

The smooth sounds of the Jazz Incredibles along with the snappy tunes of BAC's Choir and Jazz Band will take the stage in the Jubilee Room of Fischer's Restaurant in Belleville.

The troupe features vocalist/pianist Jean Kittrell of Edwardsville, sousaphone player Red Lehr of New Athens and tenor banjoist John Becker.

Jerry Bolen, BAC music faculty member, will sit in as a guest drummer. BAC President Elmer Kirchoff will dust off his trumpet and join the ensemble for a few numbers.

The program will benefit the Foundation's Fine Arts Fund.

Tickets are $15 each in advance.

'Payback' weird, but entertaining

Mel Gibson stars in new thriller

By Ronnie Roy
Staff writer

Pity poor Mel Gibson. From "Mad Max," "Lethal Weapon" to "Braveheart," he's been beaten, shot, stabbed and tortured as much as any leading man in Hollywood.

His latest film, "Payback," opens with Gibson near dead, lying on a table while a back alley surgeon digs bullets out of his back.

And things only get worse from there.

Gibson stars as Porter, a professional thief and pickpocket. He's asked by Val Resnick (Gregg Henry) to help with a job that will net them a tidy sum of money. Enough, Resnick hopes, to pay off a debt he owes to The Outfit so he can get in their good graces and join the criminal organization.

The job brings in enough money to pay the debt, unless Val has to split it with Porter. Rather than do that, Val double-crosses his partner, leaving him for dead on a parking garage floor.

Somehow, Porter survives and spends the next few months in recovery, letting the world think him dead. Once fully recovered, he returns to the city with one thing on his mind: getting his cut ($70,000) of the job.

Porter hooks up with a former flame, Rosie (Maria Bello), who gives him Val's new address. Val is living in a high-security hotel run by The Outfit, but that doesn't keep Porter from getting into his room while he's sleeping. Porter tells him to meet him the next day with the $70,000.

Porter's activity draws the attention of Val's boss, Carter (William Devane). Carter is intrigued by Porter, and tells Val he will have to deal with the problem on his own.

Val, of course, tries to kill Porter, but ends up at the wrong end of Porter's gun instead.

Porter then moves on to Carter and eventually moves up The Outfit's corporate ladder to Fairfax (James Coburn) and finally the big boss, Bronson (Kris Kristofferson), leaving blood and bodies in his wake as he tries to get his money.

Directed by Brian Helgeland and based on the book, "The Hunter," by Richard Stark, "Payback" is a clever, bloody, twisted, violent and entertaining thriller.

Gibson is well-cast as the world-weary Porter, a man with nothing to lose and $70,000 to gain.

Updike at SIUE tonight

Pulitzer Prize-winning author John Updike will speak at 7:30 tonight at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville as part of the University's Arts and Issues series.

Scheduled to appear in Meridian Ballroom of the Delyte Morris University Center, Updike will share readings and imaginative commentary with the audience. In addition to his evening appearance, Updike will conduct a Student Leadership Development Program session at 5:30 p.m. for SIUE students.

For ticket information, call 650-2320.

Fastnacht is Maeystown's own Mardi Gras

By Marge Wilson
Staff writer

New Orleans has its Mardi Gras, St. Louis has its Souldard celebration and Monroe County has its own last fling before Lent — Fastnacht in Maeystown.

Fastnacht means "the night before the fast" in German and denotes the same type of pre-Lenten celebration carried out in a number of other Christian countries.

Pancakes and doughnuts are featured because rich foods such as butter and other fats are not allowed during Lent. The Fastnacht meal is a way to use them up.

This year, as in many years past, there will be a Fastnacht German family dinner from 5 to 8 p.m. Tuesday at St. John United Church of Christ (formerly German Evangelical) in German music featured at celebration

Maeystown. German music will be played in the church hall by the New Hanover Deuschmeisters from 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m.

The menu includes bratwurst, pancakes, applesauce and doughnuts, at a cost of $5 for adults, $2.50 for children 6-12 and no charge for children under 6. Tickets are available at the door.

Formerly the Fastnacht celebration also included the custom of "grebbling" by the children of the village. The children would dress up in costume and go from door to door begging for some of the doughnuts or maybe candy. Grebbling is the German word for doughnut.

Grebbling has become a casualty of today's busier lifestyle, said resident Marilyn Thompson.

Back in the 1940s and 1950s and probably much earlier, according to an account written by Gloria Bundy, the village's recently deceased historian, grebbling was an elaborate ritual engaged in by children and adults alike.

According to Bundy, in the farms around Maeystown housewives would prepare food ahead for the Fastnacht feast to be ready for the adult grebblers.

The adults, sometimes wearing masks, would come beg for food in the afternoon to take to a central location where there would be a feast after dancing that night.

The dancing and the meal would end at the stroke of midnight — heralding

Ash Wednesday, the beginning of Lent.

The Fastnacht and grebbling customs in Maeystown go way back — no telling how far — because Maeystown was founded before 1850.

Fastnacht is the official beginning of the Historic Maeystown tourist season, according to local promoter Dave Braswell.

Other activities include the Spring Art Show, March 20-21; a German dinner, April 12; the Fruhlingsfest on May 2; an old-fashioned ice cream social on June 13; the village yard sale on Aug. 7; Front Porch Festival, Sept. 19; Oktoberfest, Oct. 10; Chili cook-off and scarecrow contest, Oct. 24; and an old-fashioned German Christmas on Dec. 4-5.

For more details, call Maeystown information, 458-6660.

Shuttles to run to parade

For $3, visitors to the Souldard Mardi Gras Parade on Saturday can avoid a big hassle.

Bi-State shuttles will run to the parade from the MetroLink station at the Kiel Center to 13th Street and Russell Boulevard and Tucker Boulevard and Lafayette Avenue. Shuttles will run from 9 a.m. to midnight.

The parade, which will start at 11 a.m., may draw more than 500,000 people.

For more information, call Bi-State at 982-1521 in Missouri or 482-8200 in Illinois.

Dogs rule the day in Souldard

By Glen Sparks
Staff writer

Hannah graced the Souldard streets Sunday in a lovely pink tutu and matching hat.

That, Hannah is a 4-year-old basset hound and not a ballerina just added to her endearing presence.

"I originally wanted to make her a hula dancer," Hannah's owner, South Sider Anne Patberg said. "Then I found this costume."

"You wouldn't think of a basset hound as a ballerina."

Or a slim-waisted hula dancer either, for that matter. But that is all part of the color and imagination of the annual Mystic Krewe of Barkus dog parade in Souldard, one of the nation's largest pet parades.

It is a place, for instance, to see a golden retriever wearing a dinosaur outfit and a labrador retriever in surgical scrubs.

Brad Meyer, 13, of West County, put a Chicago Bulls uniform on Misty at last year's parade. It didn't cause too much of a scene. This year, Misty appeared set to operate and answered to Dr. Dog or — prepare to groan — Doggie Howser.

"She's getting all the attention," Brad says. Bill Gollady of Kirkwood went to last year's Souldard Mardi Gras parade as Godzilla. This year, he and his wife, Stacy, put on court jester outfits and let their pooch, Seamus, be the large green lizard with a scaly back.

The costume needed "just a couple of modifications to help him go potty," Stacy said.

Not far from Seamus stood Rambo, wearing an old St. Louis Blues sweater. Debbie Schuerman of Florissant says the 85-pound Old English sheepdog likes to play hockey in the basement with her son, Dan, a senior at CBC High School.

Gus, the Schuerman's 12-pound poodle/spitz mix just watches.

"Rambo runs around, chases the puck, checks my son, everything," Schuerman said. "He's a treat."

At least 1,500 tail-wagging dogs took part in the parade, said Sue Maddux, who helped register the pets. The parade benefits the Open Door Animal

Slang abounds in sports

Trivia

Kevin Carbery

By Kevin Carbery
Staff writer

Slang is a quick way to communicate with others in the know, but a mystery to people outside the loop.

I would guess that every group has at least a few words and phrases of special meaning known only to its members. High school is rampant with this sort of thing. Every clique has its own language.

You can get so familiar with slang that you forget other people are not going to know what you are saying. I remember when, during my time in college at Mizzou, a student from China and I were waiting for the start of one of our journalism classes. He asked me how hard I thought the upcoming midterm exam would be. I responded, "Oh, it will probably be pretty straightforward. I don't think the professor will throw us any curveballs."

The guy answered back, "What?" and I laughed, realizing that I had gone beyond his grasp of standard English.

There are collections of slang expressions that I know exist, but of which I have only limited knowledge. Rap music lingo is beyond me. I only know a little computer slang. I'm not sure I want to know any more of either.

Some slang breaks out of its original group and becomes a widespread part of the language. "Snafu" originally was a military term meaning (and this is the edited version) "Situation normal, all fouled up." Today, it is a standard term for screw-ups.

Sports slang is borrowed from all sorts of other areas of life. To "score a touchdown" or "hit a home run" means doing well in business. "Dropping the ball" means somebody is in trouble for failing on an assignment.

For this week's quiz, the topic is slang. Relax, I am keeping it clean.

1. What does it mean to "buy the farm"?
2. In baseball, what are you doing when you are "shagging flies"?
3. What is a "door"?
4. What is a "rube"?
5. In football, what has happened if someone has been "clotheslined"?
6. From the military, what is the cleaned up meaning of "fubar"?
7. If someone is "in his cups," what is his situation?
8. What does it mean to "hang a louie"?
9. What are "scrubs" on sports teams?
10. What does it mean to be "three sheets to the wind"?

ANSWERS: 1. To die. 2. Chasing down and catching balls hit to the outfield in practice. 3. A fool. 4. A country bumpkin. 5. Someone has tackled him with an arm around his neck. This can cause serious injuries. 6. "Fouled up beyond all recognition." 7. He is drunk. 8. To turn left while driving. 9. Players rarely used in games; benchwarmers. 10. To be drunk.

Kevin Carbery can be heard as a regular on "The Entertainment and Trivia Show" from 8-11 p.m. Sundays on KMOX Radio (1120 AM).

Dogs

Sanctuary, a no-kill animal rescue center.

All manner of dogs attended, from the biggest to the smallest. Not many were larger than Payton, a 220-pound English mastiff, who looks much tougher than he is.

"He's just a big lap dog," owner Rob Pendergrass of St. Peters said.

Pendergrass's biggest concern was just keeping Payton's face clean.

"This is his drool rag," Pendergrass said as he whipped out a white towel from his pocket.

One other note: Payton wore a court jester outfit to the parade. A human court jester outfit.

"The dog costumes don't fit him," Pendergrass said.

Just a little smaller than Payton was Stephanie Mosley's colossal canine. "People ask, 'How big is he? What is he,'" said Mosley, an Affton resident.

"He" is Harley, a 200-pound mastiff, at ease watching the other dogs. Maybe Harley will be in the parade next year, Mosley said.

Several sizes smaller than either Harley or Payton was 8-pound Louie Franco.

Louie's owner Seth Miller said his dachshund has been tabbed as mascot of the Krewe of Louie float at this coming Saturday's parade. Louie looked sharp Sunday, trying out his sequined costume.

Though Louie's about as tall as a pair of Nike high-tops, Miller said the other dogs and all the commotion didn't seem to bother him too much.

"He's excited with all the kids around," Miller said.

Even smaller than Louie: "Slinky," a ferret that rested on John Flaherty's left arm.

"He's doing fine," Flaherty, an Affton resident said. "I just hold him tight. If he gets tired we just put him in my son's (Sean's) backpack."

Funny things is, put a ferret, thousands of people, dogs and who knows what else into the mix and all heck still never breaks loose, says John Fonod.

"I've never seen a big dog fight here," said Fonod, a South Sider who brought his golden retriever, Oliver, to the parade.

Mardi Gras celebrations continue in Soulard this Saturday with the Grand Parade at 11 a.m. (runs down 7th Street from Park to Lynch); the family entertainment area from 2 to 5 p.m. (on 12th Street between Barton and Victor); and The Music Tent from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. The Light Up the Night Fat Tuesday Parade will be at 7 p.m. Tuesday.

HOROSCOPE

THURSDAY, FEB. 11

If you offend anyone in the morning, go back in the afternoon to make amends. It's a day that feels like two, with distinctly different tones. The morning moon drives through the sign of travel and adventure. The evening settles into a cool Capricorn transit, bringing with it an awareness of the power we use and don't use. Our dreams will focus upon this.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Feb. 11). Your unique gift of gab brings good luck your way all year long. Your confidence grows in the next few weeks. Go for big-money opportunities at the end of March. A Capricorn or Taurus keeps you in line financially. The best times to buy into a business or become self-employed are June, July and November. A Gemini or Libra is a faithful, adventurous sweetheart.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). Draw up spending limits with a partner. Be patient; your moment in the spotlight will arrive. Advise a close friend on financial options. A new system on the job promotes efficiency. Performances go well.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Clear up a misunderstanding with a superior now while it's minor. There's luck with job offers and commissions. A discussion with a romantic partner is difficult, but you'll later see it's for the best.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). As usual, you maintain dignity and poise throughout an awkward situation. Making demands on a lover is a mistake. Save extra money now instead of looking for ways to spend it. Finalize transactions this lucky afternoon.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). If you don't take games too seriously, you could find yourself lured into a sexy trap. Socialize with co-workers this evening. Educational obligations are pressing. Current restrictions are only temporary.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). Accept a dare from yourself and no one else! Truth has a profound impact upon a friendship. A spouse or lover is particularly stubborn this afternoon. A deal could be called off due to someone else's sickness.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). A new point of view brings a change in your course of action. Family members need extra time to themselves. Pay bills quickly. Take lessons in art or language: Singles meet love in class.

•Horoscope

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Get some direction, or your energy will be wasted. Pressure from the past is alleviated by understanding and help from friends. Make plans to travel. Your good fortune may create jealousy; pay no attention.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). New jobs are more creative, but many Scorps don't take a big enough chance to find out! Expand your horizons through study or travel. Trials of love let up as you come into a new maturity.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). The name of the game is connections — be your usual friendly self whether or not others are being responsive. You are magnetically attracted to mysterious people and pastimes.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Keep true to your instincts. There is not a problem in the world that cannot be solved with honest soul searching now. Be less critical of yourself. You might be the one to pull off a miracle!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Hang on to your practical friends and loving partners; they bring great luck. Marriage will be blissful once you assure each other of your continued admiration. Make major purchases before noon, or wait until next week.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Be the teacher for those with less experience. Support groups and classes make changes easier; you can help others there, too.

Big yellow bus brings 'Rushmore' to St. Louis

By Steve Bryan
Correspondent

Star and director hit the road to promote comedy

If you were anywhere near Laclede's Landing or the Arch on a recent winter evening, you might have thought you saw a large yellow bus with the word "Rushmore" painted on the sides.

It wasn't an illusion. Traveling inside were Jason Schwartzman and Wes Anderson, the young star and the director of "Rushmore," a new comedy from Touchstone Pictures.

St. Louis was the second stop of a multi-city "Rushmore" tour and a new experience for Anderson, who had previously directed the 1996 release, "Bottle Rocket."

"I think it's possible to get depressed on the road," he said. "That's the thing we have to guard against. It's kind of isolated on this bus out in the middle of nowhere."

In "Rushmore," Schwartzman plays the role of Max Fischer, a 10th grader attending Rushmore Academy. Max belonged to almost every organization at school and founded several other clubs.

Max is passionate about many things in his life, especially the plays that he writes and produces and sometimes stars in. One of his plays was set in Vietnam and featured actual explosions on stage.

"He's not malicious, but things could go wrong in the environment that he operates in," Schwartzman said. "When things go wrong, things really go wrong."

In person, Schwartzman, a recent high school graduate, is bright and attentive and has a passion for acting and music.

"I'm not really that much like him, but I did have elements that I could draw upon to do some of the stuff," Schwartzman said. "Max wrote plays. I wrote plays. Max falls for this older girl and I remember when I was really young, I fell for an older girl."

Anderson cast Schwartzman as Max after having approximately 1,800 actors audition for the role. Except for one high school play, this was the first time that Schwartzman ever acted.

"I was sort of looking for a 15-year-old Mick Jagger," Anderson said. "That was the physical type I was thinking of, sort of a small, pale, weird sort of kid. And Jason was nothing really like that."

"But I responded to his personality first. We did some scenes and he was playing the scenes in a way that grabbed you. I quickly saw that it could be more like a Dustin Hoffman than a Mick Jagger type of interpretation."

During the film, Max strikes up an unlikely friendship with Mr. Blume, a steel tycoon played by Bill Murray.

"This part wasn't really in his comic persona," Anderson said. "It was more of a real person and he's played some parts like that before. He's been great in a few movies where he played dramatic roles instead of comedy.

"He came down to Texas by himself. He didn't have any entourage or assistants or anybody with him. So, the only people for him to hang out with was us. It helped bring everyone together and everyone becomes friends more quickly that way."

Academy Award slate announced

Questions about what movies would join the front-runners for Academy Award nominations were answered Tuesday. And the winners — well, nominees anyway — were: "Elizabeth," "The Thin Red Line" and "Life Is Beautiful." The three join odds-on favorites "Saving Private Ryan" and "Shakespeare in Love" as nominees for best picture.

Other nominations announced Tuesday were:

ACTOR: Roberto Benigni, "Life Is Beautiful"; Tom Hanks, "Saving Private Ryan"; Ian McKellen, "Gods and Monsters"; Nick Nolte, "Affliction"; Edward Norton, "American History X."

ACTRESS: Cate Blanchett, "Elizabeth"; Fernanda Montenegro, "Central Station"; Gwyneth Paltrow, "Shakespeare in Love"; Meryl Streep, "One True Thing"; Emily Watson, "Hilary and Jackie."

SUPPORTING ACTOR: James Coburn, "Affliction"; Robert Duvall, "A Civil Action"; Ed Harris, "The Truman Show"; Geoffrey Rush, "Shakespeare in Love"; Billy Bob Thornton, "A Simple Plan."

SUPPORTING ACTRESS: Kathy Bates, "Primary Colors"; Brenda Blethyn, "Little Voice"; Judi Dench, "Shakespeare in Love"; Rachel Griffiths, "Hilary and Jackie"; Lynn Redgrave, "Gods and Monsters."

FOREIGN FILM: "Central Station," Brazil; "Children of Heaven," Iran; "The Grandfather," Spain; "Life Is Beautiful," Italy; "Tango," Argentina.

SCREENPLAY (written directly for the screen): Warren Beatty and Jeremy Pikser, "Bulworth"; Vincenzo Cerami and Roberto Benigni, "Life Is Beautiful"; Robert Rodat, "Saving Private Ryan"; Marc Norman and Tom Stoppard, "Shakespeare in Love"; Andrew Niccol, "The Truman Show."

SCREENPLAY (based on material previously produced or published): Bill Condon, "Gods and Monsters"; Scott Frank, "Out of Sight"; Elaine May, "Primary Colors"; Scott B. Smith, "A Simple Plan"; Terrence Malick, "The Thin Red Line."

ART DIRECTION: "Elizabeth," "Pleasantville," "Saving Private Ryan," "Shakespeare in Love," "What Dreams May Come."

CINEMATOGRAPHY: "A Civil Action," "Elizabeth," "Saving Private Ryan," "Shakespeare in Love," "The Thin Red Line."

SOUND: "Armageddon," "The Mask of Zorro," "Saving Private Ryan," "Shakespeare in Love," "The Thin Red Line."

SOUND EFFECTS EDITING: "Armageddon," "The Mask of Zorro," "Saving Private Ryan."

ORIGINAL MUSICAL OR COMEDY SCORE: "A Bug's Life," Randy Newman; "Mulan," Matthew Wilder, David Zippel and Jerry Goldsmith; "The Prince of Egypt," Stephen Schwartz and Hans Zimmer; "Shakespeare in Love," Stephen Warbeck.

ORIGINAL DRAMATIC SCORE: "Elizabeth," David Hirschfelder; "Life Is Beautiful," Nicola Piovani; "Pleasantville," Randy Newman; "Saving Private Ryan," John Williams; "The Thin Red Line," Hans Zimmer.

VISUAL EFFECTS: "Armageddon," "Mighty Joe Young," "What Dreams May Come."

PEOPLE

Right, Students pack the gym at Worthen School to cheer on their fellow students during Monday's talent show. They weren't disappointed in what they saw during the performances, especially when Alex Harding and Adam Stockman, far right, put on an '80s-style hip-hop breakdancing routine that brought the house down.

Show me the talent!

Crazy Eights hold meeting

A correction from a previous column: The nominations made for the February election of new officers for the Pontoon Beach Senior Citizens club were, for president, Earl Edmiston and Everett Hudson; vice president, John Forrest and Lee Ridgeway; secretary, Ruth Dagon; for treasurer, Betty Ridgeway and Jim Hall. Seven trustees will be elected out of the 14 placed in nomination, who are Helen Hutton, Alice Hudson, Gladys Bass, Betty McGinness, Jean Horstmeier, Irene Karlechik, Charles Kunick, Edna Bennett, Walter Crowell, Irene Weber, Robbie Wilson, Nellie Forrest, Sylvia Massman and Rose Edmiston.

The Crazy Eight Pinochle Club held their monthly meeting on Jan. 27 in the of Melba Topp in Fairview Heights. An evening of card games was enjoyed by all who attended. First place was won by Sherry Peralez who substituted for Mickey Strack.

Free GED Classes are being offered at Belleville Area College's Granite City Campus on Maryville Road from 9 a.m. to 12:50 p.m. on weekdays from Feb. 16 to March 12. You may register at 9 a.m. Feb. 16, in the campus cafeteria.

Maxine Green

The regular monthly meeting for Avon representatives was held Feb. 4 in the Avon office, with manager Phyllis Laster in charge.

She welcomed everyone and introduced the latest products, and also presented awards and prizes.

Honor Society cup and saucer awards went to Shirley Wilkerson and Carol Gilland. Door prizes went to Jody Johnson, Corky Nance, Eileen Davis, and Tommie Myers. Gertie Ashford and Tommie Myers won the car pool prize.

Ms. Albee awards were presented to Anita Dutchick, Eileen Duffield, Helen Miller and Lillian Ruegge. All representatives are encouraged to attend these meetings and keep ahead of the new products.

Others attending were Donna

Johnson, Chloe Denny, Norma Davault, Tammy Holloway, Dorothy Lawrence, Gladys Templeman, Kellie Vance, Karen Thompson, Winnie Pointer, Deby McElroy, Karla Grant, Todd Smith, Eula McKee, Elaine Staton, Rosa Lux, Debbie Kinaid, Rosemary Ralston, Nadine Pann, Gertie Ashford, Joella Michelle and Nolan Garrett.

Jerry and Elaine Staton and Rosa Lux have returned home from Fredericktown, Mo., where they attended the funeral of Leon Denver Rehkop, a former resident.

He was a brother-in-law of Rosa Lux and Elaine's uncle. Other relatives attending were Bob and Norma DeVault, Art and Carol LaVelle and daughter Debbie LaVelle.

An annual Super Bowl party was held at the home of Jerry and Elaine Staton on Jan. 31. At the beginning of the game, a ham and bean dinner was enjoyed by all who attended. Refreshments included lots of snacks and many different delicious desserts.

The reigning Super Bowl champions, the Denver Broncos, were the favorite choice of many, and those siding with the Broncos were not disappointed as they defeated the Atlanta Falcons.

Those attending were the host and hostess and son Jerry; daughter Sherry and husband Victor Peralez and sons Victor Jr. and Kevin; Rosa Lux; Dan Harrison; Steve Harrison; Bob and Doris LaVelle; Art and Carol LaVelle; Connie LaVelle; Cheryl Schoolfield; Debbie LaVelle and guest Bob Swan of Cleveland; Leroy and Shirley Stark; Bob and Myrna Schoolfield; Loren Madison and guest JoAnn Cannon; and R.L. and Sharon Purkey.

After the game, several played pinchhole and others enjoyed playing games.

Nearly 700 elementary students from area city schools recently participated in the "1999 Picture The Music Contest," sponsored by United HealthCare of the Midwest companies and presented by The Saint Louis Symphony Volunteer Association.

SOCIAL NOTES

Trio Unit

The regular meeting of Trio Homemaking club was held at Hope Lutheran Church on Feb. 2.

The meeting was called to order by President Sarah Huber, who led the pledge to the American flag.

A delicious dessert luncheon was served by Pauline Nicholls and Emma Jakich.

Louise Anderson and Betty Welch Epperson gave the lesson for the month, which was "Are You Listening?"

Sarah passed our handouts that would have been used for the January lesson, "Risk Factors for Violence." She gave a short review of the risk factors for violence — individual risk, family-risk factors, peer-risk factors, school-risk factors and community-risk factors.

Secretary Roberta Cottrell read roll call, with 22 members present and one guest Marilyn Price. New member Mary Evalyne Yencho was introduced to the group.

Wilma Pulaski collected the dues for 1999 from members present.

Sarah mentioned that anyone interested in attending the March meeting that she would demonstrate crafts appropriate to be used at Easter. A get-well card will be sent to Marilou Lybarger, who is in St. Elizabeth Hospital.

There will be a slight charge for the salad and soup and dessert to be demonstrated and served at the March meeting. Naomi Chapman conducted games, with Vivian Forshee, Wilma Pulaski and Juanita McCarty winning prizes.

Illinois Omnicon

Preceding the regular meeting of the Illinois Omnicon Granite City chapter, Arlene Haldeman served as hostess to the chapter at a soup and salad dinner.

President Imogene Forrest opened the meeting with an invitation to enter the Favorite Recipe Press Cookbook contest, sponsored by Beta Sigma Phi. Arlene Haldeman reported on the Executive Board meeting held in December.

The make-it-or-bake-it item, donated by Imogene Forrest, was awarded to Ruth Stoyaboff. Torch Crier Bea Brackett gave highlights of articles published in January Torch magazine.

The evening program, "Flags" was given by Arlene Haldeman. From early days, when the standards bearing coats of arms and ribbons of monarchs were carried, flags were used for identification for marking boundaries.

Park District sponsors trip

The Granite City Park District will sponsor its first overnight trip of the year to Branson, Mo., on March 26, 27 and 28.

The trip will go on sale at 8 a.m. Thursday, Feb. 18, at the Wilson Park Ice Rink. The trip will be part of the Bransonfest Celebration, which is the biggest springtime event in Branson.

The group will stay at the Traveler's Inn along Highway 76. The shows to be seen while there are the very popular Shoji Tabuchi Show, with its countless costume changes, lavish special effects and production numbers; the Boxcar Willie Country Music Show, featuring Boxcar Willie, a man described as the world's favorite hobo and which provides pure country songs; and the Bransonfest Extravaganza Show, an event that will feature The American Kids, who range from 4 years olds to teen-agers and perform in a fast-paced production; as well as many talented performers such as Jim Stafford, The Freely Family, the Lennon Sisters, Lennon Daughters, JoAnn Castle, Jack Imel, Ava Barber, Lennon Brothers and possible others.

Two of the meals which will be enjoyed during the trip will include a full-course prime rib dinner and a pig roast at Compton Ridge.

Other stops to be made during the weekend will be browsing and lunch at the Bass Pro Shop enroute to Branson, Mountain Man Fruit and Nut Store, Russell Stover Candy Outlet Store for Easter Candy, VF Hall in Lebanon, Mo., St. James Winery and outlet shopping in Branson.

The cost of the trip is $289 for a single room, $246 per person for a double room, $240 each for a triple, and $233 per person for four to a room.

All fees must be paid at the time of registration. Non-residents will be placed on a waiting list and notified of availability one week after the first day of sign-up. Proof of residence must be presented for each person unless husband and wife.

The next Park District overnight trip will be to Pigeon Forge, Tenn. and the Great Smoky Mountains, which will be another trip full of three music shows. The trip will be made April 20-23 and will go on sale March 18.

A brochure detailing all of the trips the Park District will be sponsoring in 1999 is now available at the Wilson Park office during regular business hours.
